'Merry Christmas From The Crisis'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy chief William E. Simon wished everybody "a Merry Christmas from the Crisis." Thursday, then asked motorists moving up for two long holiday weekends to use only 10 gallons of gasoline per week.

Simon promised a decision whether or not to order gasoline rationing by New Year's Day.

Meanwhile, restrictions on the number of days in the week a person can drive his car are being considered, material supplied to key members of Congress indicated.

Also under consideration is extension of the Sunday ban on gasoline sales to a second day of the week, the material indicates.

The proposed mandatory restrictions were among a list of 28 energy conservation measures submitted by Simon Wednesday night to Senate conferees considering emergency energy legislation, according to Sen. Paul J. Fannin D-Ga.

Fannin, who made the list available to the Associated Press Thursday said the items were specified by Simon as those which the administration wants to be free to impose if it decides to do so during the month-long congressional break without fear of a veto when Congress returns.

best who — at a well-known story — told to stand all his Christmas.

Simon also developed a timetable at the Thursday he said that he was drawing 1.2 million of jet fuel from military stock U.S. international planes to be through a fuel crisis with the end of 1973.
